STLE AND AEM TO HOST HYDRAULICS COURSE

STLE is partnering with the Milwaukee-based Association of Equipment Manufacturers (AEM) in offering a one-day educational course titled, “Intro to Hydraulics: Lubrication Fundamentals, Hydraulic Fluids and Their Applications,” March 27, 7:30 a.m.-5 p.m., at the Sheraton Hotel in Brookfield, Wis.

This course is designed for users and engineers of hydraulic equipment who want to learn more about hydraulic fluids utilized in hydraulic systems and also gain a basic overview to lubrication concepts and theories as they apply to the application. This course covers friction, lubrication, wear, lubricant maintenance and oil analysis, hydraulic fluid composition and function and hydraulic applications.

Course instructors are Dr. Robert Gresham, STLE’s director of professional development, and David Scheetz, equipment builder engineer, ExxonMobil Lubricants & Specialties in Aurora, Ill., and STLE’s 2009-2010 president.

The cost for the course is $500 for AEM members (and STLE members with a discount code) and $850 (non-members). Note: For STLE members who need the discount code for online registration, please contact Kara Lemar at (847) 825-5536, klemar@stle.org. Breakfast, lunch, educational handouts and networking breaks are included in the price of admission.

To register online, visit the AEM Web site: www.aem.org/education/conferences/hydraulics/ or contact Angela Weller at (414) 298-4159, aweller@aem.org.

In addition, the deadline to make reservations at the Sheraton Brookfield is March 12, $89 (single rate), $99 (double rate). Call (866) 257-5990 and request the AEM room block.
