Why STLE Education?
STLE is the leading provider of non-commercial technical education. Our educational content is focused to serve a niche market of professionals working in the field of tribology and lubrication engineering. Our educational content is created, maintained and updated by industry experts who are both members and non-members of STLE. Our organization strives to provide education that is vetted by those in the field, and is honored to provide information and education to those who need it on a daily basis.

History of STLE University
Education has always been the core strength of the organization. However, to maintain that strength, offerings need to reflect member needs and wants.

In order to achieve this goal, STLE commissioned a study in 2009, attempting to gauge how members viewed our education programs. STLE contracted the Learning Studio to survey all members on current educational programs.

The results highlighted the fact that members greatly appreciated our current education and wished STLE had more educational opportunities to supplement Annual Meeting courses.

Other feedback provided by members allowed STLE to gauge what kinds of opportunities to create. Members detailed the different factors that influenced their decision to attend educational courses. Course cost, location and content were top considerations. Given these considerations, STLE decided to create a centralized location where members could peruse various educational opportunities, which has become the STLE University. STLE’s educational products include both traditional in-person education courses as well as our newly created online education products. These include certificate courses, short courses and webinars. The end result? You spoke and we listened.

STLE University
STLE offers a variety of courses that are designed for specific audiences working in the field of tribology and lubrication engineering. The courses vary by content (topical area), level (basic to advanced), and audience segment (formulators, salespeople, students and so on).

Courses are both in-person and online and fit around your busy schedule. Courses are designed to meet your varying educational needs. If you need a short, introductory course, or an in-depth course, chances are STLE has something to fit your needs. There are varying types and formats of courses to match up with your available time commitment.

STLE University
STLE offers a variety of courses, both in-person and online. Our face-to-face education locations change yearly, ensuring you have a chance to visit one nearby. Our online options allow you to purchase a course at any time and start it immediately. Also, the STLE University is also not limited to members. However, you receive significant discounts if you are a member.
